Although the Federal Capital Territory (as it was first called) was instituted in 1911, all vehicles in the territory carried NSW registration plates until January 1927. From 1 February 1927 the territory issued its own sequential numeric numberplates, starting with '1'. In 1938 the Federal Capital Territory became the Australian Capital Territory. The numeric numberplates continued to be issued until August 1968 (the final number was 99-935), from which time the 'Y' plates were issued.

The reason for the choice of the letter 'Y' on ACT numberplates relates to an attempt at establishing consistency in numberplate formats throughout Australia. In 1948 the Australian Transport Advisory Council (ATAC) suggested a basis for apportioning the letters of the alphabet amongst the respective states, using a format of three letters followed by three numbers. ATAC designated XAA to ZZZ as 'reserve', and suggested that these letters could be used, if necessary, by the Commonwealth Government, the Australian Capital Territory and the Northern Territory.

In 1954 the Australian Road Traffic Code Committee (a sub-committee of ATAC) allocated letters to the various states and territories according to relative vehicle numbers. For example, NSW, which had about 35% of all Australian vehicles, was allocated AAA 000 through to FZZ 999, while Western Australia, which had only about 8% of the nation's vehicles, was allocated UAA 000 to VZZ 999. The ARTCC decided that only the 'X' series would be maintained as reserve, and that YAA to ZZZ be allocated for the Commonwealth vehicles, the Australian Capital Territory and the Northern Territory. The Northern Territory chose not to adopt the 'Y' or 'Z' plate series, issuing numeric plates instead. 'Z' plates were adopted for Commonwealth vehicles.

The first ACT 'Y' plate was issued in August 1968. The original format was exhausted in 1998. A poll at that time indicated that most Canberrans wanted to retain the 'Y' in any new format. Consequently, the last number was replaced with a letter (e.g. YAA 00A) to provide a new 'Y' series, which commenced in April 1998 and should last for at least 40 years.

Z number plates

Prior to Self-Government in 1989 the ACT Administration's vehicles were part of the Commonwealth fleet. As such they were registered with and carried Z number-plates issued by the Commonwealth Motor Vehicle Registry. The Registry was part of the Central Transport Authority, operated by the Transport & Storage Division of the Department of Administrative Services.

On Self-Government vehicles transferred to the ACT Government had to be re-registered. A new scheme that clearly identified the vehicle as belonging to the ACT Government was introduced. It was suggested that ACTG prefix with the numbers commencing at 100-000, have blue lettering on a yellow background. However the colours were not adopted.

ACTION bus fleet also carried Z registration number plates and had to be re-registered. It was suggested that the bus fleet numbers commence at 1-000 and carry MO or B prefixes. The numbering pattern was accepted, but with the prefix of BUS.

The first ACT car registrations and drivers licences

The following table lists the first years ACT car registrations and drivers licenses granted in 1927.

These come from the handwritten register Federal Capital Commission Motor Traffic Ordinance 1926 that lists drivers licenses and car registrations granted from February 1927 to August 1936.

The names in this register are the applicants signature which has made it difficult to accurately name all individuals. These names have been highlighted in yellow.
